COMMENTARY

Market Review

- Emerging Markets slightly underperformed the MSCI World index in February as markets corrected on worries surrounding Greek debt destabilizing the Euro zone.
- On a relative basis, Latin America led emerging markets, adding 4.2% on strength in Brazil, Peru, and Mexico. Emerging Asia was nearly flat on the month as slightly rising markets in China and Thailand were offset by Taiwan and Korea. Emerging Europe was the clear laggard on weakness in Turkey as well as Russia and the smaller Central European markets.

Fund Activity & Outlook

- In February we reduced our weights in China and Colombia, adding to Russia and Brazil. We also slightly trimmed our exposure to the consumer related sectors, in part via a sale of Lojas Americanas of Brazil.

- Our overweights in Turkey and Russia detracted from Fund performance during the month but stock selection was positive in Brazil from BR Malls and Cosan and in Mexico from Genomma Lab and Ternium. Negative stock selection arose in Korea from Samsung Electronics.
- Although we are constructive on the global economic recovery and continued structural growth in emerging markets, we expect some near term headwinds from policy tightening, liquidity withdrawal and inflation. Earnings growth in emerging markets continues to be healthy and while valuations are no longer cheap relative to developed markets, they are not excessive.
